A Letter Received by the Governor of Smith from Wes

Giving Information of the Whereabouts and Doings of John

Missouri in 1859,

Sr. Louis Republican.

The following is a copy of an original letter from Iowa in March, 1859, directed to the governor of Missouri, notifying to the governor of Missouri, notifying "his honor" of the exact whereabouts of the famous free soiler, Capt. John Brown. It was supposed by the writer that there was a desire on the part of the authori-ties of Missouri and Kansas to capture and bring to justice the disturber of the peace on the border of the two states at that time. The letter was directed to that time. The letter was directed to the governor (Stewart) under cover to the St. Louis postmaster (John Hogan) to "evade suspicion" as to who gave the information. To understand the importance of the information conveyed by the letter it must be recollected that Brown's letter it must be recollected that Brown's "this sealskin sacques are rented out by the season?"

"It is true," replied the furrier, "too last performance in Kansas occurred on December 19, 1858. An escaped s'ave reported to Brown that his family had What with the mild weather and the new last performance in Kansas occurred on been sold and were across the border in Missouri on the way to Texas. were taken prisoner by Brown.
It is this party which is referred to in It is this party which is referred to in the letter. As the event turned out, the writer of the letter should have notified Gov Wise, of Virginia, as, in about ten months afterward, Brown's body "was mouldering in the grave" at Charleston, in that state. Brown, while in Iowa, was preparing for his raid into Virginia. In the previous May he held a convention at Chatham, Canada, the proceedings of which were kept secret.

It is this party which is referred to in the letter. As the event turned out, the are other merchants who offer the public as an inducement to deal with them neatly bound volumes of poetry or fiction. Others give chinaware; others articles of kitchen furniture, and I wouldn't be surprised if the time should come when the average merchant will throw in United States 4 per cents or quarter sections of improved farm lands with a pound of tea or 10 yards of calico. Sham! why this is by all odds, the shamnest age, if I may coin the word, that the world.

A provisional constitution was adopted, under which Brown as chosen commander-in-chief; J. H. Kagy (alluded to in the letter) was named secretary of war; Owen Brown, his son, treasurer, and Richard Realf, the poet, who died a few years ago in San Francisco, was made secretary of state. The presidency of this new republic was temporarily conthis new republic was temporarily con-ferred on Elder Monroe, a colored clergyman. Brown's purpose, it is now be-lieved, was nothing less than to attack slavery in its oldest seats, and by aid of the liberated slaves to overturn slavery throughout the union. The letter, of which the above is but introductory, reads as follows :

He is about five feet ten inches high, dark hair, very heavy beard and does not shave. His countenance denotes guilt. They have also eleven negroes, of which a part are females; also mules, horses and wagons, all of which their friends where they now are say they have stolen from the man they murdered, of which they boast publicly. This is the third winter that they have made this point their head-quarters and drilling their men for busi-ness in which they have been employed in Missouri and Kansas. Their quarters have been compelled to pay out from here is in a quaker settlement, and from $200 to $500, and perhaps have gone the best information that I can get they are not so friendly now towards Brown's conduct as formerly. They don't object to stealing negroes and running them off, but when it comes to stealing any other property and taking men's lives, they object. This is the view of a portion of them, while the other porrion of them them, while the other porrion of them endorsed anything and everything that Brown thinks best to do in a slave state. Brown and his men expect to remain here until the weather becomes more settled, and sell their property, which they wish to sell, for cash. They seem to feel quite secure where they are, and will probably remain there until they are well rested. There is property in that neighborhood that said Brown sold last wister or spring. I could send you depositions of responsible men confirming the account I've given you, but I think it best not to make it public, as very nearly all our friends are republicans, or, properly speaking, abolitionists.
